A COMPLETE statement of the land, sea, and air armaments of the United States has been forwarded to the Secretary General of the League of Nations, data requested by the Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference, the convening of which is scheduled for next February.

The note, which was made public by the State Department, lists in tabular form, following the model tables drawn up by the Preparatory Commission, detailed data regarding the personnel, material, and expenditures of our armed forces.

Secretary of State Stimson, in transmitting the report to the League of Nations, states that "the submission of these figures is solely for the purposes of information and publicity," requesting "that full and immediate distribution and publicity be given the person of the figures." He adds that he "entertains the hope that other nations may thus be encouraged to lay their figures before the public without delay."

Considerable doubt exists, however, that other nations will follow the United States' example in giving publicity to their reports. Soviet Russia, the only other nation so far to send in the data requested, delivered it in a sealed envelope marked "not to be opened until the conference meets." In spite of Russia's secrecy in regard to her own figures, Maxim Litvinov, Soviet foreign commissary, it is said, has asked the secretary general of the League to supply him with the information furnished by other governments.

The fact was reported in the New York Herald-Tribune of June 16, which said: "Soviet Russia, reputed to maintain the largest standing army in the world, was revealed tonight in the dual role of having asked the League of Nations for information about the armament of other nations after having filed a report of its own in a sealed envelope, with the injunction that it was not to be opened until the general disarmament conference meets in Geneva next February."

Great Britain, according to dispatches from abroad, is not going to give detailed figures as to its armament. The explanation offered is that complete details are made public each year in the parliamentary report, which is available to other countries and it is not considered necessary to duplicate this data in the special report to Geneva.

The report to be made by Japan is not yet complete, but returns, according to cable dispatches, put the strength of their active military force at 231,600 officers and men, with 623 military aeroplanes. This is exclusive of the gendarmes, which number 2,210, and approximately 20,000 armed police in Korea and Manchuria. Annual expenditures for the Japanese Army total $94,000,000, it is stated.

Newspaper comment, both here and abroad, commend the action of the United States in making public the detailed information as to armament, as an example to other governments.

The report, apart from the accompanying note, is 32 pages long. It comprises a number of model tables which have been filled in, with explanations appended. The data was compiled in the War and Navy Departments, with most of the assembling of totals being done by officers of those departments. Officials of the State Department completed the task.

Tables I through V give the average daily number of effectives reached during the year in the land armed forces and land formations organized.

Navy Study Revises
Figures on Tonnages

A CHECK-UP of the tonnages of vessels reveals that the Navy now has an increased total tonnage of about 10,000 tons over the old displacement figures on the same vessels.

Presented with the task of listing the tonnage of each naval vessel for the Disarmament Conference scheduled to be held in Geneva next February, the Navy Department made new estimates of the displacement of ships, figuring in alterations made since the vessels were built. The new tonnages, which differ greatly in some instances from the official figures previously carried, will be incorporated into a new edition of "Ships' Data" to be published.

The new light cruisers of the 8-inch gun, 10,000-ton class, were found to range from 9,050 tons to 9,300 tons. Their displacement is as follows: Chester, 9,200; Houston, 9,050; Northampton, 9,050; Pensacola, 9,100 (estimated); Salt Lake City, 9,100; Chicago, 9,300; Louisville, 9,050; Augusta, 9,050.

The fact that the "10,000-ton cruisers" are below their stipulated tonnage gives a margin of 7,100 tons, which has not been used. If the other vessels building, appropriated for, or authorized also fall below 10,000 tons, there would be sufficient displacement left for the construction of another cruiser.

In the battleship class the displacements of three vessels were fixed at a different tonnage than formerly. The Oklahoma, previously listed at 28,900 tons, now is to be carried at 29,000; the Nevada displacement will now be listed at 29,000 tons, an increase of 300 tons, and the Arkansas drops 100 tons to 26,000.

The aircraft carrier Langley gains over 1,000 tons, being boosted from 10,280 to 11,500 tons.

It is in the destroyers that the great increase takes place, for the total displacement of this class is about 25,000 tons more for the same vessels than before the check-up. As a result, the amount of replacement which we are allowed because of vessels becoming over-age at the end of this year is decreased from about 90,000 tons to 78,000 tons. This is only of academic interest as there is no possibility of

1931 Annapolis Graduates
Given New Flight Tests

PSYCHOLOGICAL tests to determine the aptitude for flying of candidates for aviation training in the Navy, have been adopted as an integral part of the qualification requirements.

The Naval Academy class of 1931, some members of which are already undergoing flight elimination training, will be the first candidates for aviation training to be required to pass the new test.

During the past few years, Capt. Dallas G. Sutton, MC, USN, together with other medical officers of the Navy, have been experimenting with a psychological test for aerial aptitude. A test has been developed which is along lines similar to the psychological tests used in schools and industrial plants to discover the fitness for particular lines of endeavor.

This test has been given to all flight candidates for the past two years and found to be almost infallible. In the case of every failure at Pensacola during this period, it was found that the candidate who was later "washed out" by aviation officers at the flying school had failed on the psychological test. During this experimental period,

Field Artillery School

MAJ. GEN. H. G. BISHOP, Chief of Field Artillery, attended the graduation exercise of the Field Artillery School at Ft. Sill, Okla., on June 13. He addressed the graduating classes and presented the diplomas. The following summary of the general's speech was issued from the office of the Chief of Field Artillery.

In his address, after congratulating and thanking the classes for their exceptional interest and their successful accomplishment of the year's work, and also congratulating the Commandant, his Staff, Faculty, and the School Troops, for their successful accomplishments during the year, he made a brief resume of conditions in the Field Artillery at the present time—calling attention to the fact that the present period of business depression is having its effect in the Army as well as elsewhere; that, in going to their new posts of duty, members of the classes must expect to find conditions not wholly satisfactory; that complaints cannot have much effect, but that a true measure of an officer is his ability to overcome adverse conditions and make the best of a bad situation.

He, also, reviewed the progress of the Field Artillery during the past year in perfecting its technique and improving its materiel. Two points which General Bishop particularly stressed were the following:

First—in his instructions to the Field Artillery Board in the matter of Field Artillery equipment, he brought out the following principle:

The unsurpassed record of the Field Artillery since its re-birth in 1907, and particularly during the World War, including also the many years when it existed only as individual light batteries, was to his mind, almost wholly a reflection of the insistence of this arm on the preservation of great comparative mobility and avoidance of mechanically controlled fire.

That the Field Artillery has consistently and unconditionally rejected heavy and cumbersome equipment—whatever necessity was alleged for the same. It has clung tenaciously to the

Advanced Flying School
To Graduate 98 on June 26

A CLASS of 98 students is scheduled to graduate from the Advanced Flying School, Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., on June 26, next. Included among the graduates are Maj. Harold A. Strauss and Staff Sgt. Opal E. Henderson, Army Air Corps; 1st Lts. Charles P. Cabell and Robert C. Oliver, FA, USA; Capts. Thomas M. Letona and Ricardo Rodas, Guatemalan Army.

Major Strauss, who has been in the lighter-than-air branch during his service in the Air Corps, and who graduated as a Bombardment pilot, will receive the added rating of Airplane Pilot, in addition to the rates he already holds as Airship Pilot, Balloon Observer and Aerial Observer. Lieutenants Cabell and Oliver will be rated as Airplane Pilots and transferred to the Army Air Corps in the near future. Sergeant Henderson and the 91 Flying Cadets will be rated Airplane Pilots and commissioned in the Air Corps Reserve.

Of these 97 students, 40 will be graduated as Pursuit Pilots, 23 as Observation, 18 as Bombardment and 17 as Attack Pilots.

West Point Cadets
Enjoy Training Tour

By LEROY WHITMAN
Editor, Army and Navy Journal.

Ft. Monroe, Va.—The school year having been completed here June 11, this historic old post, now grown into the fountain head of modern Coast Artillery training, has turned to its Summer task of giving knowledge and practice to others. Under the direction of Brig. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, the able and forceful commanding general of the Coast Artillery School and District, all has been placed in readiness for the season's training schedule.

Last Sunday the first or senior class of 262 cadets of the United States Military Academy arrived, under command of Maj. Sanderford Jarman, CAC, for three weeks of practical instruction in Coast Artillery, aviation and field artillery.

The class has been divided into three sections. One of these is now at Ft. Monroe receiving practical training in coast and antiaircraft artillery. Another section is at Langley Field receiving instruction from the Air Corps, while the third is at Ft. Eustis learning of railroad, heavy and field artillery. Each week for the three weeks of training the sections will move to another of the three posts so that the entire class will receive all of the training during the period. On July 2 the class will be assembled at Langley Field for an Air Corps demonstration and then move to Ft. Eustis for a demonstration of the Mechanized force. July 3 they will go to Ft. George G. Meade, Md., for further instruction. The Fourth will be a holiday and the following day they will return to West Point.

Maj. Earl H. Metzger, CAC (3rd CA Dist.) executive officer for General Embick, outlined to the writer, during the course of a pleasant and informative tour of the reservation on Wednesday, the vigorous schedule of Summer training. The cadets are the first on the schedule. On July 1 approximately 500 young men will assemble here for the Citizens' Military Training Camp. July 15 will see about 250 students of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, from universities as far north as New Hampshire, coming into Monroe for 15 days' training. The 246th Coast Artillery, Virginia National Guard, comprising about 700 guardsmen, will receive their annual training here during the second and third weeks of August.

Typical West Pointers, a brawny keen-eyed lot, the class now here seems to be enjoying thoroughly their periods of hard work and recreation at this picturesque post. With all types of Coast Artillery weapons here to work with, they seem impressed with their program. General Embick had lunch with them at their mess on Wednesday, where I was also fortunate to be present as a guest. The food was ample and tasty, as it must need be for this hard working group of men.

General Embick gave the cadets a brief talk at the mess, welcoming them to the post and stressing the great importance Ft. Monroe has played in history without so much as firing a hostile shot. He pointed out its vital significance in the Civil War where it formed a strong outpost virtually in the heart of the Confederacy and by its mere presence and a small force of men maintained that key position. As a base for the Union forces under General McClellan it was of great importance to the Peninsula campaign.

Wilson Park, newly dedicated, is the scene for the antiaircraft firings for this training season. The park, named in memory of the late Maj. W. P. Wilson, former Coast Artilleryman and

Press Holds War Department Mobilization Plan A Defensive Measure

THE majority of editors commenting on the War Department's plan to mobilize four million men in case of a national emergency, as outlined before the War Policies Commission by General Douglas MacArthur, agree to the soundness of such a preparatory measure. Some feel that the announcement of the plan furnishes pacifists with new material.

"THERE is nothing that should either surprise or disturb any one in the announcement that the War Department has evolved a plan for creating an army in case of war," states the Ithaca, N. Y., Journal News (Non-Partisan). "Yet we are sure to hear much of the plan to draft and mobilize 4,000,000 men outlined by General MacArthur."

"Critics in Europe are sure to seize upon General MacArthur's plan to mobilize 4,000,000 men and use it to neutralize President Hoover's plea for European disarmament. It will be futile to explain that there is a difference between plans for raising an army and the maintenance of large forces of trained men."

"Other nations know what we can do in case of war. What the world has long waited to learn is what we can and will do, through cooperation with other peoples."

"WHEN the newspapers printed  the War Department plans as outlined by General Douglas MacArthur, chief of the Army staff, for the quick and effective mobilization of 4,000,000 men and adequate equipment and supplies for such a force, the professional pacifists and all the timid folk were greatly disturbed, but without reason," announces the Bangor, Maine, News (Republican). "There is little or no prospect of the United States going to war with anybody. The plan outlined by General MacArthur is just a reasonable precaution against the United States being again caught in the costly predicament in which we found ourselves in 1917, and for which we are paying now and for many years will continue to pay. A city doesn't withhold its order for fire apparatus until a fire breaks out. No more should a country wait until war has begun before planning for an army."

"Under this program, four million men immediately would be called to field service. The Regular Army and the National Guard would be used as a nucleus around which to build a tremendous fighting force, equal at the outset to the number of men the United States had under arms at the close of the World War. Industries would have been notified beforehand what part they, individually, were expected to play in the general scheme of national defense. A plan 'to take the profits out of war' would become instantly operative."

"THE proposal to have a constitutional amendment in this country that would put war on a cash basis, on a 'pay as you go' sort of plan sounds fine," says the Hot Springs, Ark., Sentinel Record (Democratic). "In theory it means that in the event of any war in the future there should be no war debts left behind."

"There is a lot of unrest throughout the world, and there may be some more wars. There have always been wars at intervals. There don't have to be wars in the future, but there may be. And if there are wars, and our nation is involved, the next war will be fought to the bitter end, or to victory for our nation. This nation is too great now to be subjugated to other powers of the world. Our people would prefer extermination to subjugation."

on a military basis." In counting personnel, the Draft Convention agreed that the common denominator should be "average daily effectives" and that this should be computed by "dividing the total number of days' duty performed in each year by the number of days in such year."

Table One gives the total effectives stationed in the home country as 117,937, including 11,822 officers. These figures include Porto Rico, Alaska, and Hawaii, and also the personnel of the Air Corps, though later included with naval aviation in a later table. It includes Reserve officers who were called into service during the year, 22,393 officers performing service which amounts to 1,075 average daily effectives.

The National Guard of the States and territories is not counted in the total figure as they are not available to the Federal Government without "measures of mobility." It is stated, however, that service in camps and armories during 1930 results in 10,774 average daily effectives for the National Guard.

The second table give 22,020 as the numbers of effectives stationed overseas in the Philippine Islands, Panama Canal one, and other places not included under Table One. This figure includes 1,258 officers and 6,483 Philip Scouts.

Total land armed forces are given under III, as 139,957, including 13,080 officers. Under Tables IV and V are to be listed "Formations organized on a Military Basis," which is defined by the Draft Convention as follows:

"By formations organized on a military basis shall be understood police forces of all kinds, gendarmerie, customs officials, forest guards, which, whatever their legal purpose, are, in time of peace, by reason of their staff of officers, establishment, training, armament, equipment, capable of being employed for military purposes without measures of mobilization, as well as any other organization complying with the above condition."

"By mobilization, within the meaning of the present article, shall be understood all the measures for the purpose of providing the whole or part of the various corps, services and units with the personnel and material required to pass from a peace-time footing to a war-time footing."

The United States Army has no organizations which come under this definition, it is stated under this head.

Table VI gives the average daily number of effectives in the naval forces as 109,886, including 10,420 officers, 1,030 officers and 17,500 men of the Marine Corps, all officers and men employed in naval aviation, and 1,402.2 average daily effectives from the Naval and Marine Corps Reserve.

The next table calls for "Sea Formations organized on a Military Basis," of which we have none. In a footnote, it is stated that the Coast Guard has 11,866 effectives which, as in the case of National Guard, are not counted as they are not capable of use without "measures of mobility."

The average daily number of effectives reached during the year in the Air Armed Forces are given under Tables VIII through XII. Effectives stationed in the home country are given at 25,680, including 11,511 for the Army and 25,680 for the Navy. Effectives stationed overseas total 1,519 for the Army and none for the Navy, the 333 officers and men stationed at Coco Solo and the 376 at Pearl Harbor, being counted as part of the Fleet. Marine flyers in Nicaragua and Haiti are also not included under this head, being stationed only temporarily there.

Total Air Armed Forces are given as 27,324, consisting of 13,155 for the Army and 14,169 for the Navy, including the Marine Corps. The next two tables request "air formations organized on a military basis," of which we have none under the definition used.

Naval material is listed next, there being no report required on the equipment and material of the Army. Global tonnage is put at 1,251,840 in Table I. Table II lists the tonnage of vessels by categories. We are listed as having 523,800 tons in capital ships, including the Arkansas, Wyoming, Utah, and Florida. In aircraft carriers, we have built and building 91,300 tons; in cruisers with guns over 6.1 inches, we have 206,800 tons built and building, including the Pittsburgh and Rochester, which are listed for disposal; in smaller cruisers we have 75,900 tons, including the old Olympia.

A total of 273,360 tons is listed in the destroyer group, including vessels now with the Coast Guard, and ships listed for disposal. Although it is provided by the Draft Convention that de-

"BETWEEN the Spanish and the World Wars, the United States made practically no preparations for war, save in the Navy," notes the Dallas, Tex., News (Democratic). "Fortunately, the Army still retained in 1917 officers who were fully aware of the mistakes of the Spanish War, and there were some men in public life who had experienced them. Fortunately, too, there was time for definite preparation while the allies continued to hold the western front."

"Between the last and the next World War, which all hope will never occur, there is little likelihood that this country will make suitable preparations. Ours is a peaceful nation, opposed to large standing armies and to general military service, and it prefers to pursue happiness out of hearing of the bugle. There is no good reason, however, why there should not be prepared an adequate scheme of mobilizing the country in case of hostilities. That is what the War Department has in mind in its plan outlined to the War Policies Commission by General MacArthur."

"The minimum draft army on which the Department figures is one of 4,000,000 men, the number under arms at the time of the armistice. The plan is fairly definite in its outlook on probably necessary alteration of civilian factories into producers of war material. It knows what will be needed and how it can be secured. But on the essential principles of mobilizing the civilian forces, it becomes hazy. It has in mind the notion of giving the President authority to control the man and material power of the United States. General MacArthur advocates also a sort of labor administration to work a draft labor army."

"IN THE event of war the United States would have an army of 4,000,000, drafted from the ages of 19 to 45, with 7,000,000 in the reserves," says the Gainesville, Fla., Sun (Democratic). "Material would also be mobilized. Labor would not be conscripted, however, on the theory that only voluntary labor would be effective. All wealth is to be registered in order that taxes may be imposed where they can best be borne. Great cantonments would not be constructed but Federal, State, county and municipal structures would be used to shelter troops. In case of need, privately owned buildings would be utilized. A system of deprivations would be adopted for industrial and humanitarian reasons only, but no exemptions would be provided."

"THE War Department announces that it has perfected plans for the 'immediate mobilization' of 4,000,000 men in case of war," states the Sacramento, Calif., Bee (Independent).

"No doubt the War Department can mobilize its 4,000,000 very quickly—another selective draft will attend to that. But where will it put such an army when it gets it and how will it set about training so vast a body of men?"

"In the last war it took us practically one year to get even the beginnings of an army to the front in France. It may be admitted that with our large reserve corps of officers we are in much better shape today than we were in 1916. But we are not in shape to train or equip an army of 4,000,000, or anything like that number, in time to do us any good if we should happen to be attacked."

principle that whatever mechanical devices might be adopted to improve the accuracy of its fire, the physical dexterity and the wits and brains of its gunners, of its chiefs of section, and of its battery commanders, are the foundation of its fire efficiency and its ultimate dependable resort.

The second point stressed by General Bishop was the fact that he has noted, and it has been mentioned to him by other officers, and only recently by a general officer of high rank and experience, who remarked that he had always noted and admired the dash and spirit of the Field Artillery—always on its toes, always up and ready, willing to attempt and usually succeeding in everything asked of it; that this always permeated the horsed organizations, but that the moment one of these spirited, lively, and aggressive officers was taken away from a horsed outfit and put with a motorized outfit, he immediately became slow, ponderous, cautious, and meticulous. General Bishop stated to the graduates that this was an unfortunate fact in too many instances; that it was something that must be guarded against continuously; that the Field Artillery must not only preserve these admirable attributes in the horsed units, but that they must be maintained in the motorized units; that the officers must watch themselves and not let the tractors get their goat, not to let their spirit lag, their ability to do things quickly and promptly evaporate with the stable odors when going from horse to tractor!

QMC Anniversary

Ft. Eustis, Va.—The Quartermaster Corps, military and civilian personnel celebrated the 156th Anniversary of the organization of that Corps at Buckroe Beach on Thursday, June 11, 1931. This anniversary fell on June 16, 1931, but due to the training program scheduled at this post at that time, it was necessary to advance the date in order to eliminate interference with other activities.

A sumptuous dinner was served at the Buckroe Hotel at 1 p.m. During the dinner hour, Col. Daniel Van Voorhis, Cav., commanding officer of Ft. Eustis, made a short but intensely interesting address to those present. He was followed in turn by Maj. Frederick Schoenfeld, QMC, the Quartermaster, who also made a very interesting address. These speakers were introduced by Capt. Roland T. Fenton, QMC, Utilities Officer at Ft. Eustis, who was also chairman of the committee for arrangements for the celebration.

Lt. Col. A. L. Bump, 34th Inf., and Ch. F. W. Hagan who were invited as guests of the Quartermaster personnel, were absent in connection with a maneuver of the 34th Infantry during the early part of the day, but arrived in the afternoon so as to participate in a portion of the celebration.

In the evening a buffet luncheon was served and the last of the merrymakers returned to Ft. Eustis at about 11 o'clock.

Addresses CMTC Students

THE Chief of Engineers, Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, addressed 700 CMTC students at Ft. Barrancas, Fla., Saturday, June 13, on the occasion of their taking the oath of allegiance. General Brown emphasized the fact that preparation for the possibility of war was necessary.

General Brown told the students that the last such gathering he had addressed was in 1917, just after war had been declared, and he said. "There was assembled the cream of young manhood of the South * * * When I thought of how soon they were to go up against the veteran soldiers of Europe—men hardened by four years of war—I was sick at heart. They were ignorant of all things military, but I could see that they were of high courage and fine spirit. I wished they could have had a little more experience when they should go against those lines of barbed wire and machine guns in northern France."

General Brown then outlined the reason for CMTC training and urged his listeners to study and learn what it is that we must always protect, and concluded his speech with the following: "I believe and I hope that our country will live forever and a day, but if, perchance she ever is to die, let it not be from internal corrosion and decay, but far, far better on some battlefield of imperishable glory!"

THE UNITED STATES ARMY

4th Coast Artillery Band

By MANUEL COMULADA,
W. O., U. S. A., Band Leader.
THE present organization, known as the 4th CA Band, stationed at Ft. Amador, Canal Zone, is the old 5th CAC Band sent from Ft. Hamilton, N. Y., in April 8, 1916, arriving to this post, then known as Ft. Grant, on the 28th of the same month and year.

This band was originally organized under War Department Orders No. 16, May 4, 1861, as a part of the Regular Army provided in the President's proclamation of May 3, 1861, providing for one Regiment of Artillery. The regiment then organized became the old 5th Artillery and the regimental band thereof was the predecessor of the present organization, the 4th CA, then known as the 5th Artillery Band.

By Act of Congress published in General Orders No. 56, Aug. 1, 1866, this band became a post band at Ft. Monroe, Va., where it remained until 1898, when it was moved to Ft. Hamilton, N. Y. A year later, in 1899, the 5th CA Band changed stations with the 3rd CA Band, which was then at Presidio, Calif., where the 5th remained for three years.

In 1901 the designation Coast Artillery was changed to Coast Artillery Corps, the band assuming the name of 5th CAC. In 1902 the 5th CAC Band returned to Ft. Hamilton, N. Y., from where it performed additional musical duties at Ft. Hancock, U. S.; Ft. Wadsworth, N. Y., and Governors Island, N. Y.

In 1911 the band took part in the maneuvers at Galveston, Tex., participating in the practice march from Galveston to Houston, and back to Galveston, a few days after.

The band returned to Ft. Hamilton from Texas in June of the same year. In 1916 the 5th CAC Band was sent to Ft. Amador, Canal Zone, retaining its old name until 1924, when it was designated as the 4th CA Band.

It is significant to note that this band is one of the oldest in existence, a veteran organization of seventy years, and though its personnel have changed several times in all these years, and its name or designation have also changed, yet, there remains with it some of its old spirit, some of its old furniture, one or two instruments long since in disuse, and some old music long forgotten by the last generation, but which has a nature and quality sufficient enough as reminders to maintain its old organization pride and musical efficiency so well known to all who knew this band twenty-five or thirty years ago.

Decide Will Case

THE Supreme Court of the District of Columbia denied finally on June 3 all motions of the attorneys of the executrix, Mrs. Mary F. Brooke, wife of Col. Mark Brooke, USA, to set aside the verdict of the jury declaring her mother's will null and void. The will, disposing of an estate of about $65,000, left all to Mrs. Brooke, cutting off her brother, Col. Joseph F. Barnes, FA, who, bringing suit on the ground that the will was the product of undue influence, was sustained by court and jury. Strenuous objection to the verdict was made by attorneys for the will, but the court, after hearing several arguments, sustained Colonel Barnes' counsel, Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, in the view that the case was one pre-eminently for a jury to decide and that no justification could be found for setting it aside. The argument of Colonel Barnes' counsel clearly suggested that other proceedings might be expected to follow requiring an accounting as to the mother's income for a period of many years before her death.

The Signal Schools

Ft. Monmouth, N. J.—The tenth annual commencement exercises of The Signal School in its present location were held here June 15 in the grove which borders the Shrewsbury River.

Forty-two officers and two hundred enlisted men of all branches of the Army and the Marine Corps were in the graduating classes. The exercises were opened with music by the Signal Corps Band, under the direction of WO W. W. Sidwell. Prayer was offered by Ch. J. G. Stewart.

Following this, Col. A. S. Cowan, Commandant, The Signal School, briefly reviewed the achievements of the past year, congratulated the students on the degree of proficiency which they had attained and introduced Maj. Gen. George S. Gibbs, Chief Signal Officer of the Army, who made the graduating address and presented the diplomas and certificates to the officers and enlisted men of the classes.

In his address General Gibbs spoke at length upon the value of the course of instruction given by The Signal School, not only to those men who make the Army their career, but also to those who contemplate returning to civil life and commercializing the training they have received at The Signal School.

General Gibbs discussed the building program now in progress at Ft. Monmouth and expressed the hope that in the near future arrangements will have been completed for the construction of a large administration and school building to replace the temporary hangars now in use by the school.

It is contemplated that this building will follow the colonial style of architecture and will upon its completion be the most imposing structure in Monmouth County.

At the conclusion of General Gibbs' address, the diplomas and certificates were presented to the graduates. Following this the benediction was pronounced by Chaplain Stewart.

History of 27th Infantry

"THE History of the Twenty-Seventh Infantry," a book of 204 pages, compiled by Capt. Geo. A. Hunt, under the direction of Col. Wm. E. Hunt, commanding the Twenty-seventh Infantry, has been published at Schofield Barracks, T. H., and is being distributed by the Twenty-seventh Infantry Press. The book should prove of unusual interest to former officers of the regiment as it contains rosters of officers with the organization in 1901, 1903, 1907, 1910, 1913, 1915, 1919, 1922, 1925, 1927 and 1930. More than 60 illustrations are included.

Ft. Benning Notes

WITH eighteen projects under consideration, the Department of Experiment of the Infantry School at Fort Benning, of which Lieut. Col. H. A. Wells is director, made a verbal report of progress to the chief of infantry during his visit to the Infantry School last week.

Capt. Virgil Bell, Inf., is in charge of work on a proposed new rear sight for the Browning automatic rifle, and in addition is conducting tests with new blankets and pillows proposed for issue for field service.

Capt. Loren A. Wetherby, Inf., is conducting the work on the following projects: Weights of loads for infantry field and combat trains; a four-wheel drive truck with air-cooled motor; a universal truck body; a new traction device; various suggestions for improvement of infantry regimental field train equipment, and the proposed new escort wagon.

Capt. S. H. Negrotto, Inf., is devoting his time to rifle marksmanship data and to certain other projects not yet announced.

Capt. B. M. McFadyen, Inf., has obtained some remarkable results in the use of a bipod for the Browning automatic rifle. These tests have been conducted with teams of various sizes, and unusually striking results have been obtained by a two-man team. Both automatic and semi-automatic fire are being used in the tests, and the results indicate remarkable efficiency for this weapon when fired from the bipod, which weighs only two or three pounds and can be added, without hardship, to the normal marching load of the automatic rifleman of the infantry squad. Other matters being investigated by Capt. McFadyen include the tests of an experimental hat and an electric clipping machine.

Capt. R. S. Miller, Inf., who recently joined the department after being graduated from the Infantry School, is working on caliber .45 tracer ammunition, and certain other projects yet to be announced.

29th Infantry

One hundred and seven officers of the Reserve Corps of the Fourth Corps Area, have been invited by Brig. Gen. Campbell King, Commandant of the Infantry School, to attend a contact camp during the week-end of June 26, 27 and 28. The training of this group of officers is under the general supervision of Brig. Gen. Campbell King, commandant of the Infantry School and is parceled out to the 29th under the supervision of the Assistant Plans and Training officer, Capt. G. S. Wear. The officers who will attend represent practically every line and staff branch.

The instruction schedule for the camp will include firing with both pistol and .22 caliber rifle, tactical rides and terrain exercises, equitation and calisthenics. The recreation camp of

Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy, commanding the Fourth Corps Area, has sanctioned the use of the temporary barracks at Ft. Screven, Ga., for the use of the enlisted men of the 29th Infantry following this year's training camps and following the target season which the regiment is now engaged, the troops will go by battalions, about 450 men at a time, beginning probably August 22. Tybee Beach adjoins the Camp Screven reservation, where all seaside sports and recreation facilities are available. The plan approved by Brig. Gen. Campbell King on the recommendation of Colonel Major, the regimental commander, is designed to give the greatest number of men an opportunity for recreation and vacation at one time. The demands upon the regiment for demonstrations for the Infantry School during the school year makes it impossible to grant furloughs in any number and the organized regulated effort will make possible an unusual pleasure for the command.

Second Division Day

Ft. Warren, Wyo.—The Organization Day of the famous Second Division was observed at Ft. Warren on Saturday, June 6, by troops of the 4th Brigade, commanded by Brigadier General Howland. The Headquarters Company, 4th Brigade, the 1st Infantry and the 20th Infantry each held an assembly at which the history and achievements of the division and the regiments composing the division were recounted and the new men were told what is expected of them in order to carry on in the ranks of this famous division. Special dinners were served and the afternoon was devoted to sports which were arranged by the post athletic officer, including a baseball game between the 1st and 20th Infantry regiments.

The Second Division was organized in Texas in 1917, and the big star which is worn on the left shoulder of the uniform of soldiers belonging to that division signifies that it came from the Lone Star State. The Headquarters of the Second Division is at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. The 3rd Brigade, composed of the 9th and 23rd Infantry regiments, is also at Ft. Sam Houston, the 4th Brigade is stationed at Ft. Warren, the Second Engineers at Ft. Logan, Colo., and some smaller detachments at other posts.

The Second Division went to France early in the World War and from the outset covered itself with glory. It was thrown into the conflict to stop the great German drive in June, 1918, and immediately afterwards, with its sister organization, the First Division, formed the spear-head of the Allied offensive which started on July 18, 1918, which was the turning point of the World War. From that time on the division was fortified with every major operation of the American forces up to the

New Navigation Manual

A NEW manual for use in both aerial and surface navigation which contains tables for a "short-method" of obtaining lines of position is announced by the Hydrographic Office, Navy Department, and is being issued to vessels of the United States Fleet for thorough trial.

The new tables and their method of use were devised by Comdr. Maurice R. Pierce, USN, when he was navigator of the dirigible USS Los Angeles in 1925 for the purpose of furnishing a simple method of inspection and solution of lines of position. Comdr. Pierce submitted his work to the Hydrographic Office where Table I was computed, as well as other computations checked, prior to its publication.

While the publication enables the navigator of dirigibles and planes to obtain a line of position with simplicity and speed, it is of equal importance and value for the surface navigator.

The tables consist essentially of a rearrangement, adaptation and expansion of Towson's Great Circle Sailing Tables to be applied to the celestial as well as the terrestrial sphere. They are entered with the arguments, declination and local hour angle, from which is readily obtained altitude and azimuth.

When stars are utilized, only the hour angle is necessary as an entry, note being made of the sign of the star's declination merely for purposes of combination with the latitude. In aerial navigation, no interpolation is employed, while for surface navigation, it is reduced to a minimum. Like all spherical tables, other navigation data may be obtained, but the line of position has been regarded as of paramount importance.

The tables are issued by the Navy as "Hydrographic Office Publication No. 209—Position Tables for Aerial and Surface Navigation."

Secretary Adams Speaks

SPEAKING over a coast-to-coast radio network on June 13, Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams told his vast audience that total naval construction since the London conference "has not equaled the depreciation of our ships."

Touching on personnel, Secretary Adams said:

"The personnel of the Navy are selected from all parts of the country, from the farm and city, from the best of the country's youth. All enter the Naval service on an equal footing, either as enlisted men in the training stations, or as midshipmen at Annapolis."

"In the advancement of all Naval personnel," he continued, "ability and character, loyalty and service, are the only factors considered. Money, preference, and influence have no part in the Navy's ladder of success."

The subject of Mr. Adams' speech was "the Navy," and he told of "some of the problems which have confronted our Navy during the past two years," and also "reminded" his audience of the major purposes of the Navy. Extracts from his address follow:

"To complete the limitation of navies begun here in Washington during the Disarmament Conference of 1922, the principal maritime powers again met in 1929 in London. To prevent the dangers and burdens of competitive naval building this country has taken an active and leading part in both these conferences. Naval advisors assisted our delegation in furthering the objects of the conferences while safeguarding the just interests of the United States.

"The Navy has operated during the past two years at an increasingly high level of efficiency, yet it is daily striving to effect new and better methods and to adopt permanent economies. The forces afloat have reduced very materially their operating costs both by reorganization and by improvements in operations. Many obsolete vessels have been stricken from the active list and sold, and many more have been placed out of commission, to be held in reserve in the event of a national emergency. In the interests of economy several naval stations have been placed in an inoperative status, and studies are being made in an effort to eliminate any stations which are not vital in the maintenance of the Navy or the uses of our country. During the last fiscal year a saving of over fifteen million dollars was effected in comparison with the expenditures of the previous year. A further saving is hoped for during the fiscal year ending June 30.

"With the ratification of the London Naval Treaty came the task of outlining a construction program which would gradually build up the various deficient classes of ships to the prescribed limits of the London Naval Treaty. During the actual treaty negotiations work was stopped on further cruiser construction, which has delayed the normal construction program as outlined in our original fifteen-cruiser program. During the past two years eight of the new 10,000-ton cruisers have joined the Fleet, and seven are now under construction; two fleet submarines have been completed and two are under construction; one aircraft carrier is now under construction and one dirigible will be completed this summer; the five-year aircraft building program will be completed this month.

"Plans are now being completed for eleven new destroyers for which money was provided by the last Congress. Building of the various classes of ships has been planned so that each class will be gradually added to, thereby eliminating wholesale replacements when these ships become old and obsolete. To increase their effectiveness, as well as to increase their period of useful life, alterations have been completed or started on all but six of our battleships. The modernization of these ships is carried on in accordance with the provisions of the Washington Treaty. However, our total construction has not equaled the depreciation of our ships during this period.

"Serious political disturbances during the past two years have occurred in various parts of the world. In some countries conditions were such that our naval vessels have been called on to afford protection to our citizens and interests in the disturbed areas. Missions of this type are necessary, but each visit is a difficult task, requiring

CEC Officers Get Degrees

AT the Commencement Exercises held at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., June 13, Lt. (jg) John E. Faigle (CEC), USN, and Lt. (jg) Archibald Daniel Hunter (CEC), USN, were granted the degree of Master of Civil Engineering, upon the completion of a year in the Graduate School at that institution. They received their Civil Engineering degrees at Rensselaer last June after spending a year in the undergraduate course.

The degree of Civil Engineer was granted Lts. (jg) Joseph Franklin Jelly, Hunt Vreeland Martin and Thomas Leo Davey, CEC, USN, for the completion of a year in the undergraduate school. They will continue their work in the Graduate School of the Institute for the Master's degree.

New Time Signals

AFTER October 1, 1931, the number of time broadcasts sent out from the United States Naval Observatory, Washington, D. C., will be doubled and six time signals will be sent daily instead of the three now broadcast, it is announced.

This change in time signals sent from the Naval Observatory was made as the result of numerous requests to the Navy for more frequent broadcasts.

the protection of American interests while at the same time striving to maintain cordial international relations. It is to the everlasting credit of the Navy and of the Marines that hundreds of similar missions have been successfully and skillfully accomplished in past years.

"To aid in this work, to serve on ships and on shore, as well as to conduct expeditions to foreign lands where our interests require, the Marine Corps is maintained as part of our Navy. That Corps has earned a high reputation for gallantry and efficiency in action and for skill in every relation. It is now conducting missions in China, Nicaragua, and Haiti. Although actual fighting fortunately has been limited of late, we should not forget that this fine body of men is constantly making sacrifices in the necessary service of their country.

"The fundamental naval policy of the United States requires that the Navy of the United States should be maintained in sufficient strength to support its policies and its commerce, and to guard its continental and overseas possessions. Our naval policy is based on and is designed to support national policies and national interests, as well as to protect our homes. This policy aims to provide the number, size, type, and distribution of naval vessels and stations, the quality and number of personnel, and the character of peace and war operations necessary for national safety and protection. Any Navy beyond that necessity would be unfriendly to the world and wasteful to our country.

"The training of the Navy, therefore, must have as its main objects utmost efficiency for war; competence for operations in any part of either ocean; sufficient strength for exercising much control of the sea as is necessary for the protection of American interests, and especially our overseas and coastwise commerce. Other objects are: The development of the art and material of naval warfare; cooperation with all departments of our government, and the cultivation of friendly relations with the rest of the world.

"Thus we see that the Navy is a vast organization with duties and benefits covering a very wide field of action great and small. It is an essential part of our economic life and governmental structure.

"It was established to insure the safety of our ocean commerce and of our homeland, and through many crises it has not failed. Fortunately there has always existed public confidence in the Service that carries with it mutual pride.

"So, working together, there is good reason to hope that the country and the Navy will both prosper and jointly promote the cause of justice and peace in the world."

FT. WARREN BOXERS WIN

The Ft. Warren boxing squad took the measure of the visiting squad from Ft. Robinson, Nebr., in four out of six bouts in Warren Arena Thursday night, June 4.

The curtain raiser of the inter-fort bouts was the first to be fought in Warren Arena this season with outside soldier mitt artists. Gross, lightweight pride of the 76th Field Artillery, fought Godfrey, Ft. Robinson, four rounds to a decision. Gross was the aggressor during the entire bout and Godfrey was unable to cope with his hard straight rights to the face.

The next bout was short and sweet. Kirk, 1st Infantry, and Masterson, Ft. Robinson, both went into the ring with the same idea, a knockout. Both men are fast but Kirk's fast right beat Masterson to the draw and won the fight for him by a knockout in 30 seconds of the first round of a scheduled four-round bout.

The succeeding bout was one of the best for the evening, Michelman, game little Ft. Warren featherweight, won the nod from the judges over Bostic, hard hitting Ft. Robinson boxer. Michelman, after being floored three times in the first round, staged an unexpected comeback and took the remaining three rounds easily.

Johnnie Ghutzman, stellar lightweight of the post, played the game with Hickland, Ft. Robinson, for two rounds, and unless he had decided to come out of it in the third the decision would have probably been reversed, but with a terrific right to Hickland's cheek, Hickland took the long count of ten.

Daniels, Ft. Robinson, the hardest hitting welterweight seen in the arena here this season, gained the decision by a two-to-one verdict over Hill, Ft. Warren, in a fast bout. Daniels seemed to put dynamite into his punches, but at the end of four hard rounds Hill was still in top condition.

In the main bout, Henson, welterweight champion of Nebraska, proved too much for the game Santos, Ft. Warren, winning by a knockout in the second round. Santos was down twice in the first and from an uppercut in the second took the count. These lads fought in the middle weight class.

The first bout of the card between local boxers matched Opdyke, of the 76th FA, and Boudier, of the 20th Inf. These heavy bantams staged one of the best bouts of the evening. The fight ended in a draw after three rounds.

Turucz, 76th FA, stopped the veteran fighter, Durnick, 20th Inf., Post heavyweight champion, in the third round. With only a minute to go, Turucz landed the knockout punch. This was anybody's bout and it couldn't be improved on for action.

ARMY LOSES ATHLETES

When 96 cadets, winners of athletic honors, received their diplomas as graduates of the U. S. Military Academy and commissions as second lieutenants in the Regular Army Thursday, June 11, the 17 Army athletic squads lost a number of excellent athletes.

Included in the graduates are two cadets who have particularly distinguished themselves on Army teams. They are John T. Malloy of North Adams, Mass., who has won letters in four major sports and Carl E. Green of Dayton, Tex., who has an outstanding track record. Malloy has won three letters in basketball, two in football, one in baseball, and two in track. Green, in the 1929 Penn Relays, won first place in both the broad jump and the hop, step and jump; in 1931 he was a member of the Army team which won the 880 relay championship and placed second in the 440 relay. Green also took second place in the hop, step and jump.

The Army football team lost Carlmark and Messinger, regular ends, together with Malloy and Fletcher, reserve ends. In the line Miller, center, and "Polly" Humber, Captain and left guard, graduated. Bowman, regular quarterback, is another loss who will be difficult to replace. Other losses in the line include Parham, Gordon and Carlson.

In the lacrosse squad, which only lost one game this season, Warren, Lehrfeld and Timberlake, playing first, second and third attack, will graduate while losses on the defense side of the line are McBride, Zimmerman and Henry. Waters, who has won his letter in hockey and soccer as well as lacrosse, playing goalie on all three teams, is another serious loss.

Track losses include the championship relay team of Malloy, Green, Moore and Inskeep, which won the 880 at the last Penn Relay and was second

Ft. Warren, Wyo.—Champions in basketball and bowling at Ft. Warren were honored during the regular first of the month military review which took place on the Argonne parade ground at the post, when they were presented with trophies for their achievements by General Howland, post commander.

Col. K. T. Smith, regimental commander of the 1st Infantry, received the pennant for basketball championship at the post, and a handsome sweater for presentation by him to each member of the victorious team.

The enlisted men's bowling trophy and the four Ft. Warren sweaters for the team members were then presented to Col. E. M. Morton, regimental commander of the 20th Infantry, who, in turn, handed them over to Capt. A. R. Whitner, commander of Co. "E," 20th Infantry, enlisted men's bowling champions of the post.

Colonel Smith was then presented with the officers' league trophy for bowling, representing the officers' bowling team. Colonel Smith also received the award for capturing individual honors in the tournament.

Ft. Myer, Va.—On June 14, 1931, the usual pleasure for the command. Ft. Myer, Va., was played at that Post between Troop "E" 3rd Cavalry and Hq. Btry. 1st Bn. 16th Field Artillery. The game was won by Hq. Btry., the score being 10-2.

West Point, N. Y.—The winner of the Ladies Tennis Tournament was decided last week when Mrs. Fred B. Inglis defeated Mrs. Edward W. Timblake in the finals. Raynsford, Miss Glenn Touart, Mrs. Herman Beukema, Mrs. Raymond Stone, and Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor.

WIN POLO TOURNEY
Ft. Sill, Okla.—In one of the biggest upsets in polo history at the Field Artillery School, the four bearing the colors of the 1st Field Artillery came into the semi-finals by virtue of a bye and then proceeded to ride over and around the vaunted outfits representing Oklahoma City and Wichita Falls, Tex., to win the championship of the annual invitation tournament.

Seven teams in all took part in the tourney, the others being the Academic Whites, the Academic Reds, the 18th Field Artillery and the four from Anadarko, Okla. The former put the latter out of the running in the first game by a score of 11 to 10 and in the next game the Texans defeated the 18th, 11 to 5. The Sooners from Oklahoma City won from the Reds by a 6 to 4 tally and, in the first round of the consolations, the 18th came back to defeat Anadarko for a place in the consolation finals.

in the 440 relay. Other consistent point winners who have pinned the golden bars of a second lieutenant on their shoulders, are Davis, Dougher, Hogan, Levenick, and Lichirie.

FT. BENNING GOLF

Ft. Benning, Ga.—Maj. Richard K. Sutherland, plans and training officer of the 29th Infantry, won the Ft. Benning golf championship when he defeated Capt. H. J. Listen in the finals of the championship flight. Score 11 and 10. Major Sutherland last year won the Army golf championship and is expected to represent the regiment in this year's tournament play.

Continuing to shoot the same brand of golf which won the Fort Benning championship for him early in June, Maj. Gilbert K. Sutherland last week took medalist honors in the annual invitation tournament of the Columbus Country Club, participated in by amateur golfers from all parts of the South. He was tied in the 18-hole qualifying round with Bobby Chambers of Atlanta, with 76, but shot a 41 on the playoff to his competitor's 43. Major Sutherland was eliminated on the second day of match play for the title, however.

Other Army golfers participating in the tournament were: Capt. A. K. Robinson, Inf., won second flight consolation; Capt. Virgil Bell, Inf., won third flight consolation; Captains J. H. Hagan, E. J. Curren and R. H. Chance, Inf., qualified in second flight, but failed to place; Capt. H. T. Jensen, Inf., was eliminated in semi-final round of sixth flight.

JUNIOR VARSITY FIFTH.

In the junior varsity race at Poughkeepsie the Navy crew came in fifth, while Syracuse came from behind to third, Columbia fourth. Trailing Navy win. California was second, Cornell was the Pennsylvania team.

A Navy team was also fifth in the first race of the day, that for freshman teams.

NAVY CREW TRIUMPHS.

The Navy crew redeemed a poor season Tuesday by scaling the heights and capturing the Poughkeepsie Regatta to assume the crown of the National Championship for 1931 in a dazzling upset.

The Navy boatmen had won only one race this season, and that over a short distance, they were ranked as having only an outside chance, and not a very serious one at that.

With a new stroke, R. P. Hunter, setting the pace, the Midshipmen drove through a rainstorm to beat Cornell's favorites by nearly a length and a half, and Washington by close to two lengths in a spectacular struggle for the blue ribbon prize of the regatta.

It was just a race between these three, for the other six teams scattered back of the leaders soon after the start. Cornell, who hoped to repeat their decisive victory of last year, underestimated the Navy crew. They beat off the opposition that had been picked to give them the most contention, but when it came to overcoming "Old Dick" Glendon, they could not make the grade.

This was the first of the Poughkeepsie regattas that Navy had won since 1925, and the fourth since the war. Navy had to row a swift race to win, and they did, sweeping over the course in 18:54 4-5, which is the third fastest time made over the course in the 36 years since the first of the regattas.

Washington State's Huskies set the pace for the first three miles, and in fact, led by as much as three lengths in the first half of the race, and it was not until the last half mile that they yielded to Navy's rush and dropped back of Cornell also. Navy spurred at the three-mile mark to pass Washington, then at the last half-mile Cornell also passed Washington, but Navy could not be overtaken.

California's Golden Bears finished fourth, and Syracuse, which was expected to be a strong contender, finished fifth. Pennsylvania finished sixth, which was better than they had been rated, and while they finished three lengths behind Syracuse, they were a length ahead of Columbia. Wisconsin and Massachusetts Tech were never contenders.

SATURDAY, JUNE 20, 1931

 The Army and Navy personnel receives today but a little more than the remuneration—in terms of what it will buy—received in 1908." —COLUMBIA, S. C., STATE.

THERE ARE TWO ASPECTS of the announcement of a reduction in the enlisted personnel strength of the United States Marine Corps, which should be considered by the country. First, it is in line with the movement to lessen the power of the armed forces, which for some time has been in progress, and furnishes evidence of the results of pacifistic influences constantly at work to disarm the nation. Secondly, reduction in the Corps and failure to allow enlistments in other Services, mean additions to the ranks of the unemployed. It is of further public interest that reduction of personnel will affect purchases of food, goods and materials and threw such supplies back upon the choked civilian market. Thus the blow delivered strikes not only at national defense, which, under existing conditions, is so important for our safety, but at our economic situation. Uncle Sam saves, but the country loses.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY ADAMS, in talking with members of the press a few days ago, suggested that some of the money saved in Naval and Marine Corps operations might be used for new construction. In a radio speech, which we reprint in part, he described the tremendous value of the sea service to the nation, the importance of the Marines, as well as the Bluejackets, in protecting our citizens abroad and our enormous foreign trade, the huge number of American families dependent upon that trade, and the part in industrial prosperity which the development and existence of the Navy play. Because of his realization of the tremendous responsibility resting upon naval officers and men, the Secretary desires them properly paid and equipped. We may be sure that while he wants a dollar in value and service for every dollar expended, he is in favor of adequate pay and construction which will produce the parity promised under the London Treaty, which he signed.

FORMER PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, in one of his trenchant syndicated editorials, dwelt upon the value of the C. M. T. C.'s in the training of the youth of the nation to be citizens. It is forgotten now, but during his Administration he displayed the keenest interest not only in these camps, but in the R. O. T. C. and the Reserve Officers. His boy, John, attended an R. O. T. C. camp, and at the time we heard the father express his approval of such service. Mr. Coolidge is thoroughly familiar with the pacifist attack upon this desirable feature of American life, but it is obvious he has no sympathy with it and that he sees nothing militaristic in the outing the boys enjoy. His mind goes beyond the sketchy instruction in arms which looms so large in the pacifist eye, and sees the gain to the country in the association of its youth in an American atmosphere and under the supervision of officers radiating loyalty to the government and its ideals and institutions.

UNLESS THE REPUBLICANS do what appears to be the impossible and get together, Democratic organization of the House of Representatives will occur in December. This probability is of vital moment to the Services. Instead of Mr. Wood, Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, will be Chairman of the Appropriations Committee; Mr. Barbour will be displaced by Mr. Collins, of Mississippi, as chairman of the subcommittee on the War Department Appropriation Bill, and Mr. Ayres, of Kansas, will succeed Mr. French as chairman of the subcommittee on the Naval Appropriation Bill. Mr. Quin, of Mississippi, will be chairman of the House Military Committee instead of Mr. James, and Mr. Vinson, of Georgia, will be chairman of the Naval Committee instead of Mr. Britton. Thus, so far as the House is concerned, national defense will be in the hands of the South. With respect to Mr. Byrns, his policy toward appropriations will be more or less that of Mr. Wood. Mr. Collins has definite ideas of Army consolidations in order, as he anticipates, to reduce expense, and his hostility to the R. O. T. C. and C. M. T. Camps has been repeatedly expressed. Fortunately, it is the business of the Appropriations Committee to appropriate and not to authorize; and Mr. Quin and Mr. James have demonstrated their harmony of view and their determination to have all policy matters emanate from the Military Committee. Mr. Vinson is looked upon as a strong friend of the Navy.

IN HIS ADDRESS AT MARION in connection with the commemoration of the memorial to former President Harding, President Hoover used this significant language: "The Washington Arms Conference for the reduction and limitation of battleships identified his administration with the first step in history toward the disarmament of the world."

We might point out that the treaty resulting from that conference caused the surrender of sea dominance by the United States, and the violation of its spirit by foreign nations brought about inferiority, which has been emphasized by our failure to build in order to attain the parity established by the London Treaty. It is clear from the President's remarks at Marion and from the activity of the Administration that it is preparing to make the next international conference another step toward the world disarmament which appeals so much to the Chief Executive. As we expected, the publicity given to the greater cost of American national defense, in spite of its inferior numbers in personnel, ships and other equipment, is being seized upon abroad to make Uncle Sam the bugbear of militarism. Great Britain admits that her land forces exceed those of the United States by 300,000, but claims our naval arm has more officers and men than hers. Yet the United States spends $300,000,000 more on these governmental functions than does the empire. We will have plenty of talk about "excessive expenditures" by the United States before the negotiations are completed, those making it conveniently forgetting the differences in pay and standards of living.

THE QUARTERMASTER CORPS of the Army celebrated this week the 156th anniversary of its creation. Wherever representatives of this great organization were stationed, there occurred assemblages social in character but demonstrative of the pride felt by the participants in their important arm. A stag dinner was held for the officers and organized reserve of the Quartermaster Corps. Taking part in it was the Quartermaster General, Maj. Gen. John L. De Witt, and his address had as its strong undercurrent the loyalty and devotion to the Corps constantly displayed by its members. The record of the Quartermaster Corps is one of long and honorable service, and in congratulating it and expressing appreciation of its ability and efficiency, we know we speak not only for the troops it serves, but for the country as a whole.

G. B.—In order for a man to be eligible to receive a bonus for World War service, two things are necessary: First, he must have served in one of the armed services during the World War; second, he must have an honorable discharge from his World War service.

A dishonorable discharge from a subsequent enlistment will not bar a man who had honorably concluded World War service from receiving a compensation from the Government, but World War service concluded without honor precludes a man from receiving any compensation from the Government.

C. A.—The widow of a retired master sergeant of the Army with service during the World War and in peace time only, is only eligible for a pension if it can be proved that his death was incident to his service.

If incident to his World War service, application should be made after his death to the U. S. Veterans' Bureau. The rate of pension will be about $30 per month.

In case his death resulted from his service in the Army not during the war his widow should apply to the Pension Office. The rate of pension is in this case $12 per month.

C. D. C.—According to the Transportation Division of the Quartermaster General, War Department, no such happening as you describe in your letter occurred. They state that during the evacuation of the Army troops from the Philippine Islands after the Spanish-American War that on several occasions transports went aground but at no time was any vessel out of communication for more than three days.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Distribution of Army Commissioned Personnel, 1932.—The annual tables showing the approved distribution of commissioned personnel of the Regular Army was issued this week by The Adjutant General, setting forth the authorized distribution of officers for the fiscal year 1932. Compared with the same tables for the current year, many reductions have been made in the number of officers authorized for various assignments. It is explained, however, that this was done merely to "squeeze the water out" of the tables. For example, while in the current year 551 is the authorized number of officers that can be assigned to Organized Reserve duty there has not been that many assigned during the year, so in the tables for 1932 the authorization was reduced to 466 for that classification.

The policy of reducing the number of officers authorized for assignments extends rather generally throughout the entire set of tables. In the Infantry the authorization was cut by 35 officers, dropping from 3,295 to 3,260; the Cavalry drops 37, from 822 to 785; the Air Corps, including a number of Reserve officers on active duty, is lessened by 34, the authorization this year being 1,700 while next it will be 1,666. The Medical Corps, too, gets less authorized by 26, this year's figure being 1,336 and next year's 1,310. The Engineers gain two as does the General Staff Corps.

The approved number of officers for assignment to the Philippine Department is lessened by 38, the figures for the two years being 659 and 621. The Hawaiian Department's authorization drops 68, this year's figure being 908 and next year's 840. On the other hand the Panama Canal Department gains 24, jumping from 478 to 502. China loses one, Porto Rico remains the same, while Alaska gains four.

The number of officers authorized for duty other than with their branch is increased from 2,907 to 2,931, due in some degree to the inclusion in this year's table of some assignments which were not in last year's table. As mentioned above, in this table the number authorized for duty with Organized Reserves is dropped from 551 to 466. Assignment to ROTC duty, however, is authorized to be increased from 685 to 700.

The tables are compiled annually to serve as a guide to the officers of the Adjutant General's Department in assigning officers.

Coast Artillery Association Growing.—The United States Coast Artillery Association is growing in spite of the fact that it has been in existence for only a short time. There are approximately 3,500 members now, and the number is increasing daily. At the same time, however, there are some 8,000 officers who are eligible for this association. It has been pointed out that a membership in a local chapter does not automatically grant membership in the U. S. Association. Application to the national secretary must be made before this recognition is accorded.

The subscription campaign for the Coast Artillery Journal is flourishing also, but Maj. Stewart S. Griffin, editor, states that the subscription list is scarcely one-fourth of the 8,000 who should support this publication. He also states that support accorded the Coast Artillery Journal lately has been considerable, but that more must be forthcoming if the Journal is to resume monthly publication.

A number of local chapters of the association have been formed recently. They are the Metropolitan Branch, New York, whose president is Brig. Gen. J. J. Byrne, N.Y. NG; the Schenectady Chapter, with Maj. N. E. Devereaux, CA-Res., as president; the Maine Chapter, of Portland, with Col. George E. Fogg, NG, as president; the Aurora, Mo., Chapter, with Col. T. H. Loy, 203d CA, Mo. NG, as president; the Duluth, Minn., Chapter, of which Lt. Col. F. C. Tenney, CA-Res., is president; the Houston, Tex., Chapter, with Lt. Jeff Barnett, CA-Res., as president.

New National Guard Brigadier General in Utah.—Federal recognition has been extended to Brig. Gen. William G. Williams, the Adjutant General of Utah, who has been commissioned brigadier general of the line by Governor George H. Dern of Utah, and assigned to command of the 65th Field Artillery Brigade composed of the 145th and 222d Field Artillery, Utah NG, and the 143d Field Artillery, California NG. Headquarters 65th Field Artillery Brigade is just being organized in Utah and California. Part of the staff is in each state.

General Williams was born in Tredgar, Wales, July 17, 1872, and came to Utah at an early age. He enlisted in the Utah National Guard Aug. 30, 1900, and has served continuously ever since except for a short period following the World War. In 1916 he served on the Mexican border as a major of cavalry. During the World War, Oct. 15, 1917, to March 12, 1919, he was major, adjutant general's department, serving in France as adjutant, 82d Infantry Brigade and 41st Infantry Division and as commanding officer, American Rest Camp, Romsey, England.

Brigadier General Williams has been Adjutant General of Utah with the rank of colonel for many years and will continue in that position in addition to his duties as brigade commander.

Propose Training for Merchant Service.—A proposal to train enlisted men of the Navy for merchant marine licenses is being considered by the Navy Department. Under the plan advanced, men may receive special training aboard ship to fit them for examination for third mate or assistant engineer's license. Enlisted men obtaining such licenses and securing a berth aboard an approved vessel of the Merchant Marine after the completion of their enlistment in the Navy, would be eligible for commission in the Merchant Marine Naval Reserve. Men entering the merchant service would retain their eligibility to reenlist in the Navy without loss of benefits of continuous service by the terms of the proposal. The tentative plan was announced by the Bureau of Navigation as follows: "The Bureau has drawn up tentatively a proposed circular letter outlining the conditions under which enlisted men may enter the Merchant Marine Service upon completion of their enlistment, and still retain their eligibility to reenlist in the Regular Navy without loss of the benefits of continuous service. The bureau contemplates training enlisted men who apply for examination for third mate or assistant engineer's licenses. The men who gain these licenses may join the Merchant Marine Naval Reserve upon expiration of regular enlistment. This training should make available to the Merchant Marine Service a new and profitable source of officer personnel, which will have the additional value of being trained in the ways of the Navy."

Whole of Corps Involved in Selection Board.—Three officers of the Corps of Professors of Mathematics have been ordered to convene at the Navy Department June 29, to recommend one officer of the Corps for promotion to the rank of captain. Capt. Frank B. Littell, Math., will be president of the board, the other members being Capt. Paul J. Dashiell, Math., and Capt. Herbert L. Rice, Math. Captain Rice will also act as recorder. To fill the vacancy which will occur Aug. 1, on the retirement for age of Captain Dashiell, the board must stay in session for ten days and then report their findings to the Secretary and the President for approval. Its task, however, will not be a difficult one, for outside of the members there is but one other member of the corps: Comdr. Theodore W. Johnson. Appointments to the Corps of professors of mathematics were discontinued some years ago, and today there are only four officers in the Corps on the active list. When Captain Littell and Captain Rice both retire in 1933, there will be only one member of the Corps left, Commander Johnson, and with his retirement a couple of years later, the Corps will cease to exist as an active Corps.

Assignment of Navy Class.—Over half of the members of the Naval Academy Class of 1931 have been assigned to battleships, a compilation of the details to various vessels of the fleet reveals. The list of assignments, published in the Army and Navy Journal last week, shows that the USS Maryland will receive a greater number of the new ensigns than any other vessel, 21 of them being detailed to this battleship. The Tennessee will have 19 newly commissioned ensigns as will the two carriers, the Lexington and Saratoga. Seventeen of the new officers go to the USS Texas and a like number to the Nevada, Idaho and New York. The Oklahoma and Pennsylvania each receive 16 ensigns, while 15 are assigned to the Arizona, Colorado and West Virginia. Each cruiser will receive from two to five of the class, one is assigned to each destroyer and tender, while 13 of them are ordered to temporary duty with the Navy Rifle Team and will be assigned to ships at a later date.

To Eliminate Division in Ordnance Staff Sergeants' Eligible List.—Because the staff sergeants eligible list of the Ordnance Department at the present time is divided into five sections, corresponding with the various classes of examination, that is, Maintenance, Depot, Ammunition, Administration and Instructor, the conclusion has been reached that there are too many classifications of staff sergeants and that it would be desirable to reduce the eligible list to one section. The Commandant of the Ordnance Field Service School has been requested to prepare a program of instruction for a course which would fit students for general duties of Post Ordnance Sergeant. This contemplated change will not be applicable for some time.

The course of instruction which would prepare a student candidate for the staff sergeants' eligible list would be a basic course. No special effort would be made to attempt specialized instruction designed to qualify the student for duty at a particular type of station such as an Infantry or Cavalry post, coast defense, Air Corps station, or Ordnance establishment. The assumption would be made that the student was being prepared to become the Ordnance Sergeant of a large post of any type and perhaps the only representative of the Ordnance Department at his station.

This course would obviously be a combination of the present Depot, Administration, Ammunition, and Maintenance courses, with special emphasis on the first named and decreasing emphasis in the order in which named. Generally the ideal Post Ordnance Sergeant should know enough about the subject of maintenance to place a quantity of rifles used by a CMTC group in proper storage condition at the end of the training period, and to insure that Ordnance property under his supervision is properly taken care of. Obviously, he can not be required to be an expert repairman or general mechanic; however, regardless of any other qualifications, he must have a thorough knowledge of the basic subject of supply, especially as it concerns the procurement, issue and storage of Ordnance property at his station and the necessary keeping of records thereof.

It is the view of the Office of the Chief of Ordnance that a staff or technical sergeant who takes the examination for promotion to the next highest grade should be able to pass an examination along basic lines. Therefore, beginning in 1932, the above-mentioned course of instruction will be put into effect. As regards the examinations for the Spring of 1932, it is proposed to prepare them along the same lines as those of this year. For the calendar year 1933, the promotion examinations would be the same for all classifications.

All Army Hospitals To Have Radio.—A project recently approved by the War Department directs the installation of radio receiving equipment in 105 Army hospitals located throughout the United States, Panama, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. The Chief Signal Officer is charged with the preparation of the estimates and supervision of the installation, which is to be completed in 1935.

Present plans provide for a central receiving set in each of the hospitals. By means of electric cables to each bed, programs will be sent to the individual patients who will be provided with high quality head sets or "radio pillows." These latter devices consist of a small receiver encased in a sponge rubber cushion, with an outlet to permit of undisturbed reception. Recent tests of these pillows indicate their entire practicability for this purpose. Individual volume control devices will be installed to enable the patient to adjust the volume of the reception.

Due to heavy static, reception of ordinary broadcasts in Panama, Porto Rico and the Philippines is unsatisfactory. A number of short-wave receivers will be furnished the hospitals in these places for the reception of programs broadcast in the United States and foreign countries. In addition, local broadcasts will be made possible in these hospitals by means of electric phonographs which will also be provided.

The number and location of the hospitals to be equipped is as follows: 1st Corps Area, 7; 2nd Corps Area, 11; 3rd Corps Area, 5; 4th Corps Area, 11; 5th Corps Area, 6; 6th Corps Area, 4; 7th Corps Area, 8; 8th Corps Area, 12; 9th Corps Area, 10; Panama, 8; Hawaii, 1; Philippines, 2; Porto Rico, 1, and hospitals under immediate control of the War Department, 19.

New Chief of Procurement District.—Maj. Gen. H. L. Gilchrist, Chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, announces the appointment of Mr. Edward L. Benedict as Chief of the Third Chemical Warfare Procurement District, with headquarters in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Benedict succeeds Mr. William I. Berryman, who died April 12, 1931.

Mr. Benedict is vice president of the National Steel Fabric Company, a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Steel Company, and is a director in several other activities in Pittsburgh and vicinity. Prior to his appointment as Chief, Mr. Benedict was assistant to the former District Chief, and brings with him to his new position a strong personality and a wide knowledge of the industrial establishments in the District of which Pittsburgh is the headquarters. This District comprises a large area along the eastern seaboard and the Gulf Coast south of Pittsburgh and east of the Mississippi, and is a very important unit in the industrial mobilization plans of the War Department.

Junk Largest Semi-Rigid Airship.—The old R. S.-1, of Scott Field, Ill., the largest semi-rigid airship in the world, which was dismantled in the fall of 1928, was recently sold to a St. Louis junk dealer by the Salvage Officer, Scott Field. This airship was built for the Government by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company for experimental purposes and was ordered dismantled, after three years of flying, because the bag had become too porous for further use. The final flight of the ship was made in the fall of 1928, with Maj. W. E. Kepner in command. It was on this flight that the R. S.-1 encountered a terrific series of thunder and wind storms while over Arkansas and Tennessee. The force of the wind stove in the nose-cone of the ship, but luckily the damage was not enough to keep its crew from returning to Scott Field. After the dismantling, the parts were held in storage, pending a decision as to the purchase of a new bag and the repair of the nose-cone. Because of various faults in the airship, it was finally decided the ship has served its purpose and that further expense and research along this line would be inadvisable. The design of the craft was new, in that the "V"-shaped keel was used in an inverted position. This keel, the control car, the motor gondolas and the control surfaces, after being wrecked for further use, brought the sum of $900 to the U. S. Treasury.

Pending Major Generalcies Arouse Speculation.—With three major generals of the line scheduled for retirement for age this Fall, considerable speculation already is rife as to whom the vacancies will be awarded. Maj. Gen. William Lassiter, now commanding the Hawaiian Department, reaches the age of 64 on Sept. 29 of this year; Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commanding the Second Corps Area, attains the age of retirement on Nov. 23 and the following day Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commanding the Third Corps Area, also becomes 64 years of age. Under the recent legislation, however, the actual retirements do not take place until the last day of the month in which their sixty-fourth birthday falls.

Thus far the two major generals created under the regime of the present Chief of Staff have been strictly on seniority, Maj. Gen. Albert J. Bowley, who was first on the list of brigadier generals, getting the first vacancy, and Maj. Gen. Robert E. Callan, who was next ranking brigadier general, getting the second. On this basis, and there is general belief that it will be followed, the vacancy to be created by the retirement of General Lassiter will go to Brig. Gen. Joseph C. Castner, now at Ft. Lewis, Wash., who has been in his present rank ten years and is now ranking brigadier general. General Castner still has three years to serve on the active list.

Next in line is Brig. Gen. Edward L. King, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, who is only 57 years of age. Following him is Brig. Gen. Harold B. Fiske, now in the Canal Zone, who is 57 years of age. Thus following strictly the seniority precedent set, these three would go up this year.

However, there is mention in some quarters of the names of others. One hears the names of such men as Brig. Gen. Stuart Heintzelman, of Ft. Leavenworth; Brig. Gen. Charles R. Howland, of Ft. Warren; Brig. Gen. Casper H. Conrad, Jr., of Manila, and many others.

Pay and Promotion.—With an Army promotion bill drafted that at this stage of the procedure appears to have a better chance of enactment by Congress than any bill in years, interest in the subject generally, while lively among certain groups, appears on the whole to be lagging. Conversations with officers not only in Washington but in nearby posts, Ft. George G. Meade, Ft. Eustis and Ft. Monroe, reveals a surprising disinterest in the entire subject. This appears to be largely due to the fact that the subject has dragged along so long without action that there is a widespread feeling that definite improvement within the immediate future is hopeless.

However, the feeling among those in the Department who have been closely connected with the subject is directly opposite. They believe firmly that unless opposition to the measure springs up within the Army itself the bill will be positive of enactment. Its failure to treat of controversial subjects, such as revision of the list or creation of separate lists, while at the same time not precluding such legislation if sponsors should wish to push them, gives it a favorable status, they believe.

Some pertinent remarks on the pay situation were made by Mr. E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut, at a meeting last week of the Bridgeport (Connecticut) Ordnance District.

"I propose," Mr. Hubbard said, "to devote the few moments at my disposal to a subject which might at first blush seem entirely outside of the realm of our discussions tonight—the inadequacy of Army pay. The industrial preparedness program—and, indeed, our whole scheme of national defense—can obtain its fullest measure of success only with competent personnel on the government side. And, since over the course of years, high-caliber men are attracted and retained only by adequate remuneration, the question is not wholly unrelated to the business which brings us together tonight."

The pay system of the military services is a weird and wondrous affair, almost unintelligible to the civilian. Comprising as it does a schedule of extra allowances based on dependents, it violates one of the canons of wage-fixing in private industry—that compensation for personal service should be determined by the economic value of that service (in terms of production or responsibility) rather than on the relative social or family needs of the individual. Not infrequently these commutations and allowances create the anomaly of a subaltern with a larger income than his commanding officer, who is several grades his senior.

A comparison with salaries for men of similar attainments in civil life is hard to draw, not only because of the allowances referred to above, but because the retirement pension, plus the insured permanency and security of military careers, must be taken into account; but even discounting for these factors, the differential between civilian remuneration and Army pay is wide. Moreover, other branches of public service have shared in the general rise of wages and salaries over the past two decades, while the Army and Navy have stood nearly stationary. And of the two, the Army seems to have suffered most because of slower promotion and other circumstances.

"So much discussion has been directed at these insufficiencies that further comment takes on the flavor of triteness, but repetition cannot alter the essential truth of the charge that these schedules are sadly in need of adjustment. As manufacturers, already faced with an alarming upward trend in the cost of government, we are naturally reluctant to encourage any move which will tend to increase governmental expenditures still further. However, the effectiveness of the military service, including its prosecution of the industrial preparedness program, requires that it attract and retain men of ability and high professional attainments, and this cannot be done unless some reasonable parallel in remuneration is maintained with executives of analogous posts in civilian life, and in other branches of government service."

Christie Tank Bid Approved.—The Secretary of War has approved the bid made by U. S. Wheel Track Layer Corporation, of which Mr. J. Walter Christie is president, for seven high-speed tanks of the Christie convertible wheel-track type. A contract has been drawn up and submitted to Mr. Christie for his signature. A performance bond of the full amount of the contract ($241,500) is being required. These tanks will not be fully armored but will be equipped with simulated armor.

The bid made by Mr. Nicholas Straussler, of London, England, although considerably lower in price than that of Mr. Christie, was not approved, it is said, because the specifications submitted by him did not meet with the approval of the Department. The tank design submitted by Mr. Straussler, while complying with the requirements for a wheel track vehicle is said to have been radically different from that previously constructed by Mr. Christie. Notably, it is said, his vehicle steered with all eight wheels.

Mr. Christie, with his attorney, has been in Washington for a few days this week conferring with officials regarding the contract. He is said to have promised that he will be able to deliver one tank a month after he gets the first one built. Under the contract, the vehicles will have to pass certain tests upon delivery before being accepted by the government.

The seven new vehicles will be apportioned between the Infantry Tankers and the Mechanized Cavalry Regiment. The Infantry Tank officers, members of the tank board and officers of the school, as well as the officers of the Mechanized Force, and those interested in the development of mechanization in the Cavalry have been highly impressed with the performance of the Christie Tank now being demonstrated from time to time by its inventor and all of them are desirous of obtaining some for tactical experimental work. They feel that it shows high promise both mechanically and tactically and are eager for an opportunity to try it in the field.

Value of Garrison Ration.—The value of the garrison ration for the fiscal year 1932 has been fixed at 42 cents per ration by General Order No. 4, and the commutation value of the garrison ration for the Philippine Scouts has been fixed at 24 cents per ration. The commutation value of the garrison ration for students of the advanced course, Reserve Officers' Training Course, is fixed at 30 cents per ration.

The 42-cent commutation value of the garrison ration for the fiscal year 1932, represents a reduction of 8 cents per ration from the year 1931, for that ration was fixed at 50 cents. The ration for the Philippine Scouts was decreased one cent, as its value for 1931 was 25 cents. The ration for the ROTC did not undergo any change, remaining at 30 cents.

Signal Corps Testing Television.—An extremely simple television set was being tested by the Office of the Chief Signal Officer this week. The set, made by the DeForest Company of Passaic, N. J., is for use with an ordinary radio receiver, and it reproduces messages or pictures sent by the transmitter. It is likely that the set will be allowed to remain in the Office of the Chief Signal Officer for further test. Thursday morning a number of pencil sketches were transmitted from the C. Francis Jenkins television transmitting station on Georgia Avenue extended, just outside of Washington, D. C. These sketches were reproduced legibly by the receiving apparatus, although they were not of the most favorable type for transmission, being written with a hard pencil on poor paper. Further tests are to be made to determine the most favorable conditions under which messages and sketches may be sent. It was understood that the range of this set is equivalent to the range of the receiver used in conjunction with it.

New Flight Tests

decision as to flying aptitude was left entirely with the aviation instructors, the medical officers only passing on physical qualifications, and recommending as to aptitude. Some candidates who failed the psychological tests and were recommended by the doctors as poor risks, have gone on and qualified as naval aviators. However, in many cases, though qualifying, they have not proved to be first rate pilots, it is said.

The success of the experiment has led to the test being established as a necessary one to pass before being sent to Pensacola. Candidates will be grouped into three classes: Good risks, fair risks and bad risks. Those placed in the latter class as a result of the test, will be definitely ruled out. Those rated on the exam as good risks will be selected first, while those in the middle class will be taken later if vacancies exist.

Seventy members of the 1931 graduating class, newly commissioned as ensigns of the line, are now at the flight elimination schools at Hampton Roads, and San Diego. Half of them started at Hampton Roads on June 8, and the other half began at San Diego on June 15. The course is a month long, and when they complete it, will go to the vessels to which they have been assigned, and a second group of 70 ensigns of the 1931 class will enter the elimination school. Besides these 140 officers, 53 others of the class were found physically qualified for flying and applied for training. They may be sent to elimination training later.

THE past week at Ft. Sill has been crowded with interesting events. The Horseshow held the center of the stage Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and it was a most enjoyable affair. General Harry G. Bishop, Chief of Field Artillery, arrived Thursday and attended the Horseshow that afternoon. Besides the permanent personnel and their house guests there were many friends from Lawton and the surrounding country among the spectators each day. Equally as interesting as the Horseshow has been the Annual Ft. Sill Polo Tournament with teams from Anadarko, Wichita Falls and Oklahoma City and four post teams participating. The last game of the tournament will be played this afternoon.

In addition to the show and tournament there has been a round-of parties for guests on the post and farewell parties to departing officers and their families, and the week was climaxed by the stroyers shall be listed as over-age when 12 years old if laid down before Jan. 1, 1921, and as over-age when 16 years old if laid down after that date, none of the destroyers built during the World War and now over 12 but under 16 years old are listed as over-age. Some comment has been aroused over the fact that the only distinction made as to over-age destroyers is that 29 vessels are described as being over 16 years old.

Graduation Exercises for the Students of the Field Artillery School yesterday morning and many who are leaving for new stations are now on their way.

In submarine tonnage there is a total of 80,680 tons, including one built and two appropriated for, and 17 over-age vessels.

In the exempt vessels, we have a train of 776,085, and 88,500 tons of other vessels which are classified separately.

In listing the tonnages of vessels, the displacement of a number differ from the figures furnished by the Office of Naval Intelligence used during the London Naval Treaty and published many times since then. The new tonnages are the result of checks made of alterations made in vessels since constructed.

It was found that eight of the 10,000 ton, eight inch cruisers range from 9,050 to 9,300. On the other hand most of the destroyers have increased in tonnage due to the adding of equipment. As a result of the check, it is found that the United States Navy has a net gain of about 8,000 tons in the same ships it had before.

Air material is given next. We are listed as having 1,752 aeroplanes in the armed forces, having a total horsepower of 1,028,745. Of this number of planes, 695 are under the Army and 787 under the Navy. Dirigibles are listed separately and show that the Army has three airships and the Navy two.

The next heading of the report gives expenditures for land, sea and air forces of the United States. The total expenditures for the land forces during the fiscal year 1930 are given as $350,457,317; for the naval forces—$375,291,828; and for the air forces—$110,070,314. While furnishing this information, the United States did not in any way agree to budgetary limitation, as the American delegation in the Preparatory Commission made a general reservation on this subject.

Totaling the sums expended for the land, naval and air forces, as was done by many both in this country and abroad, gives $835,819,479, a considerably larger figure than the appropriations for the War and Navy Departments during this year. It was explained, upon inquiry, that the total for the air forces should not be included in computing the cost of armament as the expenditures for air were included under the land and naval totals. There was no footnote explaining this under the budgetary tables, although it was stated in a note under the table on effectives that the personnel of the air forces were included under the Army and Navy as well as separately. This oversight led to the conclusion, as expressed in newspapers to some extent, that our armament expenditures were "about $840,000,000."

If the total for air forces is not counted, however, there still seems to be a discrepancy. The total for naval expenditures approximates very closely the appropriations for the year, and checks drawn upon the Treasury by the Navy Department during the year, which are usually regarded as being the most accurate estimate of expenditures. The figure in the report for the expenditure on land forces raises some discussion. This amount—$350,457,317, is approximately $23,000,000 more than the checks drawn on the Treasury by the War Department. Checks drawn on the Treasury by the War Department for military activities during 1930 total $327,366,394.57, page 486 of the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury of that year reveals.

Inquiry at the War Department failed to reveal from where the excess $23,000,000 came, whether from other departmental appropriations or from State National Guard appropriations.

Concluding the report are a number of annexed tables, showing the pay of reserves, expenditures for shipbuilding, expenditures for pensions, outstanding credits, and for construction authorized but not appropriated for, including both the Army housing program and the Navy building program.

Official TablesEFFECTIVES

Model tables annexed to Article 30 (Part IV) of the Draft Convention.

Model tables of the average daily number of effectives reached during the year in the land armed forces and land formations organized on a military basis.

Table I
Land armed forces stationed in home country.

a. Total effectives, including the ef- fectives specified separately in this table.		b. Officers
117,937 (Notes [1] to [6])		11,822

Notes:—(1) The following forces are included in Table I:

	Officers	Warrant Officers	Men
Territory of Porto Rico	62	5	1,030
Territory of Alaska	9	1	297
Territory of Hawaii	735	58	14,048
Totals	802	64	15,375

(2) The Air components are an integral part of the U. S. Army and are included in the totals in Table I.

(3) The legal strength of the U. S. Army as authorized by the National Defense Act of June 10, 1922, is: 17,728 officers, 640 warrant officers, and 280,000 enlisted men.

(4) The National Defense Act authorized 1,120 warrant officers. Amendments to the Act reduced the authorized number of warrant officers to 640, as shown in the preceding paragraph, but permitted the excess number of warrant officers to remain in the grade until legally separated from the Army. This accounts for the present number of 975 warrant officers which are included in column "a", Table I.

(5) Table I does not include the National Guard of the States and Territories of the United States, which is not available to the Federal Government without measures of mobilization, none of which was called or drafted into the Federal Service during 1930. During 1930 members of the National Guard were given certain training in armories and camps which, when computed under Article 3 of the Draft Convention amounts to 10,774 average daily effectives.

(6) During the Fiscal Year 1930, 22,393 Reserve Officers were called into the Federal Service and trained for an average of 17½ days per officer. This training when computed under Article 3 of the Draft Convention, amounts to 1,075 average daily effectives and is included in totals in Table I.

Table II
Land Armed Forces Stationed Overseas.

6,483 Philippine Scouts are included in the total for the Philippine Garrison.

The total in column "a" includes 111 warrant officers.

The 270 officers shown in column "b" opposite "all others" include officers on duty as language students, military attaches, duty with the Graves Registration Service in France, on duty in Nicaragua and China, and officers changing station and on leave of absence.

The figures in column "a" opposite "all others" include, in addition to the 270 officers shown in column "b", warrant officers in China, Japan and France, enlisted men in China and Nicaragua, and enlisted men changing station and on furlough.

Table III
Total Land Armed Forces.

139,957	13,080

Note:—

(1) The forces stationed in the Territories of Porto Rico, Alaska, and Hawaii are included with forces of the Home Country in Tables I and III.

Tables IV and V call for "Formations organized on a Military Basis" and "Formations organized on a Military Basis Stationed Overseas." The State Department specifies that this country has no organizations which would come under the Draft Convention definition of such formations, which are capable of use without "measures of mobilization" within the meaning of the definition contained in Article 4.

Model Tables of the Average Daily Number of Effectives Reached During the Year in the Naval Forces

a. Total effectives, including effect- ives specified separately in this table.	b. Officers
109,986 (Notes [1] to [6])	10,420

Notes:—

(1) Includes 1,030 officers and 17,500 men of the Marine Corps (average strength), of whom 313 officers and 3,518 men are temporarily on duty in China, Haiti and Nicaragua.

(2) Includes all officers and men employed in naval aviation.

(3) Includes 1,455 warrant officers and chief warrant officers of the Navy.

(4) By the Acts of August 29, 1916, and July 1, 1918, the total authorized enlisted strength of the Navy, exclusive of the hospital corps, those sentenced by courts martial to discharge, those detailed to duty with the Naval Militia, those furloughed without pay, and enlisted men of the flying corps, and those under instruction in trade schools is 131,485 plus 6,000 apprentice seamen. The authorized officer strength of the regular Navy as of Dec. 31, 1930, was 10,009. The actual enlisted strength varies from year to year, according to appropriations. The authorized strength of the Marine Corps is 27,400 enlisted men and 1,248 officers and warrant officers.

(5) Includes a Naval and Marine Corps reserve of 1,402.2 average daily effectives, as defined by Article 3 of the Draft Convention, of whom 323.4 are officers. (Estimated for fiscal year 1932.)

(6) None of the officers or men included in these figures are recruited by conscription.

Table VII calls for "Sea Formations organized on a Military Basis." The State Department noted there that the U. S. Navy has no organizations which come under the Draft Convention definition of "Formations organized on a Military Basis." Because it falls outside this definition, the document states, "the U. S. Coast Guard of a total strength of 11,866, of whom 1,289 officers, is not included in Table VII."

War Dept. Mobilization Plan

(Following is the fifth installment of the War Department Mobilization Plan, as outlined by General Douglas MacArthur before the War Policies Commission.)

V.

THE proposed organization I am about to describe differs in some details from that of the War Industries Board of 1918, and is more comprehensive in scope. This is because of the changed conditions under which we live. However, those who have made a study of this question will see much similarity between the two.

I cheerfully acknowledge the debt that the government owes to the pioneers who worked out the principles and theories of operation upon which our plan is based.

Director of Industry

The Director of War Industry is appointed by, and is the confidential representative of, the President. The Director of War Industry is assisted by a small headquarters staff of experts engaged in the continuous study of such matters as price movements and their causes, substitutes for critical materials, conservation, business practices. The main body of this office is made up of two branches—one to coordinate demand, or requirements, the other to coordinate supply, or industry as a whole in its efforts to meet those requirements.

Demand is organized in the requirements branch of the office of the Director of War Industry. This is the part of the organization that includes representatives of the using services. Otherwise the whole organization is civilian.

The industrial branch of the office of the Director of War Industry has a very simple organization. It consists of a Coordinator of War Industry, assisted by an Industrial Advisory Board, composed of a few prominent industrialists, all selected by the President and assigned to duty as representatives of the government. This organization is charged with the coordination of American industry. Each member of the board is assigned general supervision over a group of War Service Committees.

Each industry, group of industries, or component part of an industry, is invited to elect for itself an executive or war service committee and to empower it to exercise definite control over the industry and to act for it in designated matters connected with the emergency. War service committees would represent not only manufacturers and distributors but such other interests as transportation, power, labor, and shippers. In fact, any association or organization might appoint a war service committee.

The War Service Committee is thus not a governmental organization. It is elected by and exercises only the powers delegated to it by the industry it represents.

Industrial Organization

It could be objected that since this organization is not to be set up until after the beginning of an emergency, time will be consumed in perfecting its details, and the whole machine will have no information, or operational plan on which to start. This has been provided for in the following manner:

First of all the director and his principal assistants will be selected by the President, because of their suitability, and called promptly to Washington. This will be facilitated by the preparation and keeping up to date in time of peace of a list of names of men with the special qualifications necessary. A program of this description is now being initiated by the department, and in which the cooperation of national industrial associations and other government agencies will be sought. To provide promptly for each of these assistants, the necessary nucleus of office personnel there will be detailed to each section upon the outbreak of the emergency one of the officers engaged in the peace-time study of the particular matter involved. This officer will secure the necessary clerical help, and transfer immediately to appropriate office space all statistics, studies, and plans that have been accumulated on the subject during the planning period. The Navy has agreed in principle to assist in this matter.

To help establish the body of officers from which this nucleus could be secured, there is, in addition to the planning work itself in both services, the Army Industrial College. In this school eminent industrialists annually deliver lectures on appropriate subjects, and discuss present trends in the relationships of government to business. The course gives the student an elementary understanding of the industrial processes in this country.

The nucleus provided in this way will permit the new officials to begin functioning promptly. Expansion will be relatively easy, and it is expected that the Army officers loaned to the organization, except those who must necessarily remain in the Requirement Section, will be returned to us at an early date.

Price Control

Practically every government in recorded history, in peace and war, has attempted to control prices of commodities and services. But the factors of supply and demand and price do not respond readily to government fiat. Hence, almost unbroken failure has followed each attempt. Autocracy compels subterfuge and evasion, and dries up the sources of supply. A weak government finds its orders widely ignored. Yet, a first concern of government is to assure the well-being of its citizens. Hence, it must ever seek, so far as possible, a fair distribution of the advantages and burdens of national existence.

War conditions make peculiar demands for government control. Also, then, if popular morale is high, many restrictive measures are feasible which would not be accepted in normal times. Nevertheless, even then governmental effort has never accomplished all that was sought.

Certain conditions in war, particularly in the early stages of war, disturb the price structure or are increased in their disturbing intensity as the price structure itself is upset. They are:

a. Unusual governmental demands, requiring us to call into production many high-priced producers who can not profitably operate in peace.

b. Reckless governmental buying. The government's practice in the end is contagious and leads to, and almost compels, reckless private buying.

c. High-cost production due to the necessity of employing unskilled workers as industry expands.

d. Increased insurance, interest and tax rates as hazards of trade and demands for money increase.

e. Restriction or threatened restriction of essential imports.

f. Inflation of the currency as the government seeks to finance its augmented purchases, and is increasingly responsive to the opposition to increasing tax burdens.

Our economic experts differ as to the causes and effects which enter the problems involved in these abnormal conditions. They differ also as to the desirable and effective remedies. They agree that a major factor of disturbance is purely psychological, and that this factor is susceptible to governmental alleviation. Thus, if the government adopts a firm and reasonable attitude—if, in the stress of war, it maintains an air of confidence and calm, then that confidence and calm are usually reflected in the minds and activities and business of the people.

The War Department has studied widely the story of price control efforts. It has sought the expert knowledge of men of authority. Its conclusions are:

a. Some measures for price control are inevitable and must be taken early in any major war.

b. Moderate control undoubtedly can be instituted initially, particularly with respect to basic raw materials. Added control should be undertaken as it becomes necessary, and might finally cover the whole range of commodities.

c. Coordination of Army purchasing, as contemplated in the plan presented to you, and the elimination of all competitive buying between branches of the Army, will be strictly enforced. A like cooperation and a like freedom from competitive buying among all governmental agencies should be assured through the activities of the Director of War Industries. Thus the government itself would avoid a major cause of price disturbance and would prevent its own agencies from themselves increasing its final costs.

Financial Digest

FROM a trading standpoint, the advantage, apparently, remains on the up side, according to recent morning stock letters from E. A. Pierce and Co. To those committed to long positions the rally to date has fulfilled all reasonable expectations. In the face of adverse news developments which at times in the past would have been construed as definitely bearish, the market has substantially retained in a conservative manner all gains made over the past week.

While there can be no way of determining with any exactness when liquidation may be completed, it is evident the market is still free from important selling. It seems likely that the market will continue as for the past few days.

While Germany's demand for revision of the Young plan may ultimately be of great importance to the market, it is not likely that it is currently of primary importance in shaping sentiment, but believe that the market is still more concerned with its internal situation than with outside factors.

d. Governmental departments must have dependable agencies for determination of fair prices. The price offered in any one locality for any commodity must be uniform.

e. Prices determined by the War Department for special supplies, and by a control agency for general purchasing, must be set for definite areas and for short periods of time.

f. The prices promulgated as fair and reasonable should be determined by agreement between government and the representatives of industry. To facilitate this the plan contemplates a maximum use of fact-finding federal and state agencies and the war service committees. The latter particularly should have detailed data as to price factors and trade conditions in each industrial area.

g. Tax laws should be so framed as to require the minimum of inflation, and to recapture all unusual profits. A registration of wealth at or soon after the beginning of any war would facilitate fair treatment and have a salutary effect upon the national morale.

Freezing of prices would appear to be a doubtful expedient because so many factors are involved that injustice must follow. Evasion and court appeals are inevitable. In the end the government's effort would probably be largely gesture. Attempts at enforcement would likely create antagonism, and the government would lose the essential elements of good will. Without complete and unstinting popular support no nation can hope to fight to victory.

Since the Supreme Court has definitely determined that no price fixing agency of government may set a price on a citizen's property and compel him to give that property to the government at that price, any fixed price is effective in government buying only when it is enforced by public opinion. Beyond this the government is compelled to commandeer—and this as a general method of war time procurement is not desirable from any standpoint. Forceful taking should be reserved, then, to occasions of real necessity and the citizen's road to judicial appeal should not be made long or difficult.

On July 1 Mr. and Mrs. King will leave Washington for their summer home at Harwich Port, Cape Cod, Mass.

Training of Cadets

later, for years, an Ordnance Officer, was dedicated June 11, in the presence of General Gulick, who gave a short talk. Lt. Col. C. M. Wesson, of the office of the Chief of Ordnance, spoke at the dedication, pointing out that although Major Wilson's name has been associated for many years with fire control instruments in use in both Coast Artillery and Field Artillery he gained his greatest distinction in the field of antiaircraft fire control instruments. He will be remembered, Colonel Wesson predicted, as the foremost American designer of Antiaircraft fire control instruments.

On Thursday, Maj. Gen. John W. Gulick, Chief of Coast Artillery, came to Ft. Monroe and on a closely worked out schedule witnessed the cadets going through their various training activities. General Gulick has been keenly interested in the work and developments at Monroe and frequently visits the post.

Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the Military Academy, will arrive here on June 23 to inspect the cadets, while Lt. Col. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., commandant of cadets, will arrive on the 28th. Major Jarman, who is commanding the class here, is assisted by Capt. William H. Donaldson, Jr., Capt. Harry C. Barnes, Jr., Capt. Marvel H. Parsons, 1st Lt. Perry McC. Smith, 1st Lt. Peter W. Shunk, 1st Lt. Elmer E. Count, Jr., 1st Lt. Robert W. Berry, and 1st Lt. Maxwell W. Tracy, all officers of the Coast Artillery Corps.

The cadets have found great enjoyment in the new Beach Club which was completed and opened last month. While the old Officers' Club in the casements of Ft. Monroe has been a center of social activity for many, many years, a need has long been felt for a beach club. With the support of General Embick this has been accomplished and a most attractive and comfortable club house, built entirely of logs and rough wood, has been opened on the beach providing facilities for bathing and a good size central hall for dances and other social gatherings. Col. Percy P. Bishop, assistant commandant of the school, is president of the club; Maj. Delmar S. Lenzner, 51st Coast Artillery, is vice president, and Maj. Earl H. Metzger performs the functions of secretary and treasurer.

Plans are now well under way for a beach club for the non-commissioned officers, who are receiving all possible aid from the entire post for their project.

FEEL the difference • HEAR the difference TAKE THE DIFFERENCE!

Like an oasis in the dusty desert of dried tobacco, the new Camel Humidor Pack brings you the joy of fine quality cigarettes in prime mild condition.

Now, wherever you go, you can always be sure of getting a fresh, throat-easy cigarette when you demand Camels.

It's easy to tell the difference. Your sense of touch detects it as you roll a cigarette between your fingers. Dry tobacco is stiff and crumbly. Camels are full bodied and pliant.

Even your ear can tell the difference. For a dried-out cigarette crackles when you roll it.

But the real test is taste and taste is causing a great nation-wide switch of men and women alike to Camels in the scientific new Humidor Pack.

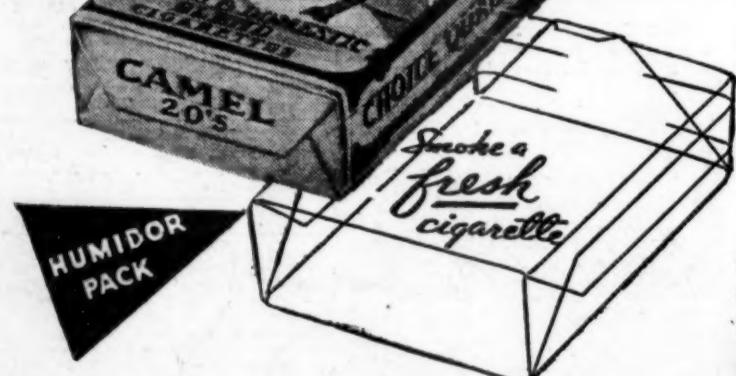

As you draw in that fragrant, mild, cool smoke, redolent with the luxury of fine Turkish and mellow Domestic leaves, only then do you realize the full importance of this new Humidor Pack.

For scorched or dried tobacco is brash and tasteless and its smoke is unkindly hot to the tongue and throat.

If you are a Camel smoker you have noticed the improvement the new Humidor Pack makes in this your favorite cigarette.

If you don't smoke Camels, try them for just one day to see how much you're missing. After you've known the mildness and joy of a really fresh cigarette, switch back if you can.

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY, Winston-Salem, N. C.

It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton — this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.
